Government Not Committed

Premier Greenfield.

The legislature yesterday gave its approval to a joint resolution by Premier Greenfield and Mr. C. G. Giroux, Liberal member for Graveland, urging upon the dominion government to bring about an immediate settlement of the Pacific railway matter. The resolution states that a coast outlet for this part of the province is a matter of the highest importance. A statement of an early date, from the dominion government, is requested. The matter was asked, so that negotiations might proceed as early as possible to bring about a settlement of the question. Premier Greenfield stated that he was in the district of the coast outlet of the railway in conference. He gave the indication that the plan might be under consideration, although he stated that the province had no certain arrangements.

The Hon. Chas. Mitchell, leader of the opposition, stated that the government had no responsibility in the matter. The government has committed itself to no particular route, he stated.

SIXTY PER CENT GO "BROKE"

Six more of Manitoba's rural credit societies have gone "broke." That is what it amounts to, though the polite phraseology employed says they have been "placed in the hands of the provincial supervisor of rural credits as administrators." If they were private concerns it would simply be said that they were bankrupt. Out of 74 of these societies in the Province, 44 of them are now in that position, with liabilities totalling a million and three-quarters.

At a time when the privately-owned banks are being subjected to a deal of criticism, because one of them went to the wall through mismanagement, it is informing to note that these credit societies in Manitoba have established a record for failures which stands altogether by itself. These institutions are publicly-owned and operated if any kind of a concern comes under that category. But they have the banks beaten to a frazzle when it comes to collapsing. Sixty per cent of the banks in Canada have not gone broke, nor any percentage comparable to that. The theory that the public know how to run a financial institution better than the financiers know is correspondingly put at a discount.

EUROPE'S BORROWINGS

Sir George Paish upon tinicals will be able to sell her goods "so long as the United States continues to lend money to Europe." That is reassuring in one way, but discounting in another. For the time it means that markets are available, but for how long?

The inference is that Europe is living on borrowed money. That inference is supported by the fact that within the last year United States financiers have advanced a thousand millions in loans to the old continent.

That way of doing business cannot go on indefinitely. Loans have to be repaid. When the point is reached where repayment is doubtful fresh loans will cease to be made. It is time that Europe had got its production industry on its feet and was living on the wealth it is producing. If it cannot do that six years after the war, when does it propose to stop discounting notes?

One moral from this summary of the position across the Atlantic is that Canada should look elsewhere for all the markets it can locate. There can be no permanent prosperity built up by depending upon sales to bankrupt customers. If Europe is putting its loans into productive enterprises its security will be improved and its buying power multiplied. If it is borrowing money to buy food, we had better try what chances there are of selling food stuffs in the Orient.

THE CONFERENCE APPROVED

The House of Commons has had its first tussle with the question of reforming the Senate, and concluded that before anything is done in that direction the projected conference should be held between the Dominion and Provincial Governments.

Aside from those who will be satisfied with nothing less than a remodelling of the Senate according to their own particular ideas, that decision will meet with general approval. Because of the duties imposed upon the Senate in respect to the preservation of provincial rights, the Provinces have a vested interest in the Upper chamber and are entitled to say whether and in what respects its constitution and powers are to be altered.

The resolution is in line with the declared intention of the Dominion Government to call a conference of the kind before any recommendations are made to Parliament. The alternatives are to do nothing or to undertake to change the method by which Senators are appointed, elected, or the powers with which they function, on the sole responsibility of the House of Commons. The public have given to the members of the House no mandate to reconstruct the Senate and dictate its constitutional prerogatives according to their own views, whims, or prejudices. But there is no expression of public opinion wide enough to warrant the calling of a conference to consider how and in what measure the position of the second chamber should be modified.

WHY BAR THE CANADIAN SETTLER?

The Legislature on Monday had a field day when members of all parties canvassed the immigration question from over-populated Britain to the vacant land in Alberta. The proceedings wound up with the unanimous approval of a resolution setting forth that new-comers should be located where there are roads, railways, telephones and other public services; that there should be a selection of immigrants by the Provincial and the Dominion authorities should co-operate in advising and supervising the new settlers after they are located.

The resolution itself conveys little information as to the intentions of the Provincial Government. The speech of Premier Greenfield gave an intimation of what the Ministers are thinking about, though he refused to explain that he was not announcing a settled policy but only suggesting a possible line of action.

The scheme outlined by Premier is an ambitious one. It involves the setting up of a Land Settlement Board, working in conjunction with Provincial, Dominion and British authorities in the assistance, direction and regulation of immigrants. This body would have power to buy land with public money or credit and re-sell it to the immigrants on long terms. The Provincial Government would select areas in which the new-comers were to be colonized, and would generally look after them until they were on the road to success.

In general outline the plan appears similar to that launched a few years ago by the Canadian Colonization Association, except that under the Premier's suggested scheme the public would supply the money to pay for the land. The Colonization Association has evidently quit the field, for the reason that the carefully worked out project failed to materialize, perhaps because private investors would not take the risk of advancing the capital.

One notable gap in this arrangement is the lack of an opportunity for Canadians to take advantage of the assistance to be held out to immigrants. If anybody is to be helped at the public expense, it is to get on land, it would seem a reasonable proposition that the taxpayer who has to stand responsible for the money spent on the risk incurred should be eligible for such assistance. The money or his credit to establish people from the other side of the world on land which he would gladly go upon if he could finance the shift would be neither just nor expedient.

There are more people in Canadian cities than there ought to be, in proportion to the farm population. The cities of the young people and young women from the farms continue. The higher wages, more regular hours of employment, and the "thrills" of city life are magnets which draw the young from the farms.

But there would be a compensating drift back to the farms if the disillusioned migrants from the farm could get back. The country boy or girl finds out after a while that living in town is not just what it seemed to be from a distance. With middle age comes the realization that there are other than the thrills which are worth paying attention to. Security against want in old age is one of them. And the average farmer has more security against that universal dread than the average town man has or can have.

The difficulty is that by the time the country boy has discovered that living in town means working for nothing more than a living, with the prospect of a living when he can no longer work, he has not the means to buy a farm and establish himself on it. There are thousands of people in the cities today who would go back to the farm if the going back were as easy as they found it to get away from the farm years ago, and who would stay there and make good. The going back cannot be made as easy as the getting away was, but if Governments are to orient the way for outsiders these would-be Canadian settlers surely have a claim for consideration.

This is a skeptical age. Nobody has blamed the Ferguson beer bill for bringing on the earthquake.

It is suggested that the hamlet who shot two trappers at Walsh was crazy. Insanity is a common plea for misdeeds of that kind, but isn't this getting in the claim a bit early?

The Bracken Government denies that there is any intention on the part of the Ministers of trying to reduce the number of members in the Legislature. The Greenfield Government has not admitted the soft impeachment as yet, but there is a strong and growing impression that it, too, has abandoned the idea of legislating some of its supporters out of public life.

Twenty Years Ago

From the files of the Daily Bulletin, March 11, 1925.

At a meeting of the council last evening Alderman Edwards brought up the timely question of a permanent allowance for Jasper avenue. Considerable discussion followed in which it developed that the present plan would have required the expenditure of $100,000 for a similar structure, having been in use for eleven years. For some time the expense will be retained, and it is of course it will increase as the walls grow older. It was generally agreed that the present owners of the property to be benefited by the construction of a permanent wall of payment should bear the major portion of the expense, part of it should be borne by the city or large. The council of acquiescing what was proposed should be left with the advice and advice committee who will bring in a report on the matter at an early date.

Fort William: A jury has been empaneled to inquire into the death of Nick Paulson, who was stabbed in the neck last Saturday.

Ottawa: The final game of the series between Ottawa and the Redoubt ended here for the championship of the Pacific. The Redoubt team won the first 2 to 1, the Ottawa the second 4 to 2, and now both teams go into the final game with heavy betting on each. There will be a lot of money change hands in Ottawa after the game.

CUT PRICE TO FIT
Lethbridge Herald.
What we should do is to find out what price will sell Alberta coal freely to eastern consumers. That price the railroads, the operators and the miners should set. Their trade together and make adjustments sufficient to check the eastern market.

OCEAN RATES
Farm and Dairy.
In view of the fact that the dairy farmers of New Zealand, through their recently organized Dairy Producers Export Control Board, have succeeded in making a new arrangement with the shipping companies which transport their products to the markets of the world by means of which they expect to save some $100,000 a year in freight rates it would seem as though our Canadian farmers might well give some thought to the important question of ocean freight rates than they have given as yet.

BUYING POWER
Winnipeg Tribune.
The purchase of $100,000,000 worth of $2.00 Western Canada farmers cannot fail to have a stimulating effect upon all lines of business. In addition to the price of the wheat product represents a net addition to the buying power of the farmer and the land he occupies in advance. The date of its payment and the amount paid would be a very small part of the time the payment was made, and it has therefore not been a great deal of money received as initial payment.

Thirdly, by representing a clear cash profit after costs of production and freight have been paid, in very considerable sum of money, even to the man who has farmed on a small scale, and it will give him to pay many necessities which purchases has been postponed. The phenomenon which has been mentioned lately called a "buyers strike" should now have place in a lively season of spring buying.

THE WHY OF THE "HON"
Vancouver Sun.
Charles Dana Gibson, eminent magazine artist and connoisseur of feminine beauty, plans to remark that combined hair should be allowed to lie in the air of the inverted triangle of style conservatism.

Indeed, Mr. Gibson goes farther than that. He even declares that he likes it, that short tresses are beautiful.

Mr. Gibson's dictum will probably make no difference on way or the other. Women would rather be told that they will do it, no matter whether Mr. Gibson and the whole world are with them or against them.

The reason for bobbed hair is based on psychology. It is as old as the hills.

In short, bobbed hair is woman's declaration of independence, the flouting of her new freedom. In the 13th century good Christian knights shaved off their beards, having their flowing manes cut to form a cross with their heads in order to show their devotion to the Church.

In early Victorian days men let their beards grow again to show their superiority to the clinging womanly female.

And now the woman's turn. The more men shave, the more she will cut off. If men don't want shaved heads, why, they had better stop the shaving.

In face of handicaps, Canadian Pacific freight rates are lowest on the continent

ONE of the expensive factors in operating a railway in Canada is that the big movement of grain and livestock is practically confined to four months, from September to December inclusive.

The Canadian Pacific must be prepared to take care of this traffic when it is ready to be moved. It must keep on hand literally thousands of freight cars and hundreds of locomotives, many of which lie idle for eight months in the year.

Not only does this equipment lie idle waiting for the big rush, but most of it must be hauled empty one way because, unfortunately, there is little if any more traffic from the opposite direction than at other seasons of the year. If this equipment could be kept busy, and earning, the year round, operating costs would be greatly reduced.

greater than the average of the Canadian Pacific.

Railways of Great Britain average receipts per ton per mile of freight for the year 1922 (the last year reported) were 3.35c., or 260.7% greater than the average of the Canadian Pacific.

Only good management and sound, economical financing of the Canadian Pacific, by which capital charges have been kept at a minimum, have made possible these low rates in face of low per-ton-per-mile earnings.

Canadian Pacific rates are the standard of all rates in Canada, so that the whole public is deriving the benefit of the Canadian Pacific management and financing.

The Canadian Pacific, for forty years, has led the way in the development and settlement of Canada and today, more than ever, it is a dominating force in the progress of the Dominion.
